THE STORY

Anya, known to her fans as “Angel,” is a Jamaican-born, Chinese-heritage artist fusing dancehall, hip-hop, and pop with the bite of alternative rock — a genre she calls alternative dancehall. Raised in Kingston and forged in Miami’s neon glamour, she delivers warrior anthems with bad-gyal confidence: high-end, street, and elegant in the same breath.

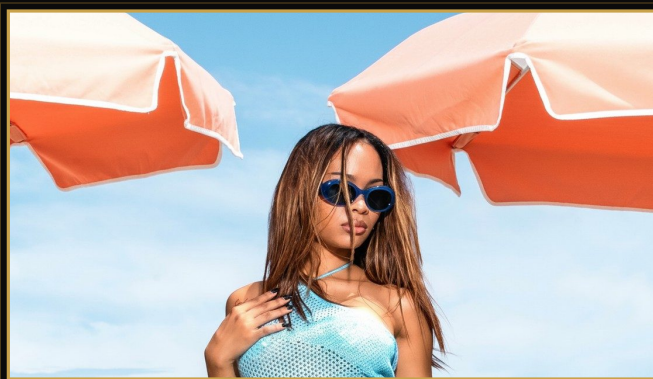

Her music moves like a blade wrapped in silk — hip-hop bounce underneath, distorted guitars on top, dancehall patois and cadence riding over it. She writes for the loyal and the wronged: anthems about betrayal, vengeance, and coming back gilded. Anya isn’t entering a genre. She’s building her own.

*“Good angel.
Bad gyal.
Island royalty with rockstar blood.”*

— THE BRAND

THE SOUND

Hip-hop beats and 808 low-end at the foundation · alt-rock guitars on the edges · dancehall patois and cadence up top, English for melody · hooks built for the scroll. Think hip-hop bounce × dancehall flow × dark-pop menace × arena-rock chorus energy × Miami swagger.
